

UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI PUBLIC SCULPTURE PROGRAM
2019 Report to the City of Coral Gables
November 1, 2019

This report is submitted in accordance with the requirements of the City of Coral Gables Art in Public Places Ordinance No. 2007-37, adopted December 11, 2007.

This ordinance provided for exemptions that included an accredited university that maintains a publicly accessible permanent collection of at least 30 sculptures.

In order to maintain this exempt status, the university must also meet the following criteria: A report of the campus art master plan, demonstrating changes to the collection during the previous 3 years presented to the City Commission in December.

The University of Miami's Public Sculpture Program was formalized in 2001 to expand public sculpture beyond the grounds of the Lowe Art Museum. The collection in 2007 included 31 sculptures by respected local, national, and international artists installed in public locations throughout the Coral Gables campus. The 2019 collection includes 35 sculptures.

The selection, site location, and programming relating to the public sculpture on the campus conforms to the American Alliance of Museum's standards and best practices for accredited institutions and the Professional Practices in Art Museums of the Association of Art Museum Directors.

The Collection is professionally managed by the Lowe Art Museum, which provides a sculpture brochure with self-guided tour for visitors to the Coral Gable Campus. In addition, the brochure is made available online and widely distributed to other civic, arts, and cultural organizations in the area. A new QR Code will be added to the 2019 Guide version to access additional information on the University of Miami's Sculpture Park Program.

Report Regarding Changes to the Collection from November 2016 –
November 2019

Conservation:

- Two sculptures were de-installed for conservation and treatment for having sustained damages during Hurricane Irma (event occurred on September 2017):
  - Jane Manus Tete-a-Tete, 2001 – was severely damaged by a tree limb. Sculpture was reinstalled in September 2018.
  - Tony Rosenthal Barbell, n.d. – water intrusion from event caused joint corrosion. Sculpture was reinstalled in April 2019.
- Conservation and treatment performed due to Hurricane Irma's sustained damages (in order of most severe):
  - Jane Manus Tete-a-tete
  - Tony Rosenthal, Barbell
  - Chryssa, Large Metal B
  - Efrain Recinos Siren in the Clouds
  - John Henry, Snapper Creek
  - William Dickey King, Up There
  - Large Buddhist Stele by unknown
  - Jane Washburn, Genesis
- John Henry, Snapper Creek –currently undergoing conservation treatment

In FY2019, regular maintenance schedule continues for all sculptures, including new acquisitions.

New Sculpture Installations:

- Dale Chihuly, Mosaic Persian, 1998-2018, a 2018 new permanent collection acquisition installed in the Lowe Art Museum's lobby in April 2018
- Therman Statom, Creation Ladder, 1992, a 2019 new permanent collection acquisition installed at the University of Miami's Newman Alumni Center in August 2019.

Sculpture De-installations:

- Agustin Cardenas, Le fruit de la memoire, 1992 was de-installed from the museum's lobby in April 2018 and stored in the Museum's on-site permanent art collection storage.

Public Access

- The 2019 version of the Guide to Public Sculpture on Campus is currently in production (copy attached) and will be available January 2020 on the University websites; at the Lowe Museum, and distributed to:
  - University of Miami Board of Trustees, senior management, and major donors and friends, University of Miami students and faculty
  - Citizens Board
  - Lowe Art Museum donors and support groups
  - Lowe Art Museum annual Art Basel champagne brunch
  - City of Coral Gables and Miami-Dade County Administration
  - Other area cultural institutions and museums
- June 2018 – GeoMuse project is a CREATE Grants Program, designed to enhance learning and engagement at the University of Miami by facilitating close collaboration and resource sharing and is generously supported by The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Assistant Professor of Interactive Media Lien Tran and Professor Diana Ter-Ghazaryan (Lecturer, Geography and Regional Studies) developed GeoMuse with students from the University of Miami. Using a high-precision GPS unit from UM Libraries, the program developers collected accurate geographic coordinates for the public sculpture park. The project will be linked to the Lowe Art Museum's website and can be accessed by scanning the new QR code located in the hardcopy version of the 2019 Guide.
- November 2019 – Nextech Imaging Solutions working in tandem with the museum's Digital Experience Manager and Collections and Exhibitions team to 3-D scan Hans van de Bovenkamp, Circles and Waves XX, 1987. Project to be completed in early 2020. The final 3-D scanned model and files will be used as a research and visitor engagement tool that can be used for school groups, groups for visually impaired, general public, all university constituents on campus and off-site.

Introduction to the Public Sculpture Collection

Art delights the senses and stimulates the mind. It is a keeper of memories (both individual and collective) and the hallmark of a civilized and engaged society. Public art, in particular, plays a critical role in giving voice to human creativity while also beautifying our surroundings. It is for these reasons that the University of Miami is proud to host a vibrant sculpture park, which comprises more than thirty pieces by leading sculptors from around the world. These works are a testament to the University's commitment not only to the arts and all that they represent but also to globalism and diversity. In addition, they speak to UM's abiding interest in enhancing our local community and promoting a shared sense of pride.

The works held in the University of Miami's sculpture park were generously gifted to the U by a number of remarkable philanthropists and are available for the general public to enjoy. This guide is designed to help you easily locate and identify these sculptures, which have been installed at strategic points throughout our lovely Coral Gables campus and are professionally overseen by the Lowe Art Museum.

Founded in 1950, the Lowe is Miami-Dade County's first collecting art museum. Its encyclopedic collection comprises 19,000 works and spans 5,000 years of global art and culture. The University's outdoor sculpture park, which was formally established in 2001, is a fitting adjunct to the Museum's holdings and reflects Miami-Dade County's diverse community.

We hope you enjoy discovering the University of Miami's outstanding collection of outdoor sculptures, which will continue to grow in the years to come.

PUBLIC SCULPTURE PROGRAM

Lowe Art Museum
Jill Deupi, Director and Chief Curator

Message From the Director

Art delights the senses and stimulates the mind. It is a keeper of memories and one of the hallmarks of a civilized and engaged society. Public art, in particular, plays a critical role in giving voice to human creativity while also beautifying our surroundings. It is for these reasons that the University of Miami is so proud to host a vibrant Sculpture Park, which comprises more than thirty pieces by leading sculptors from around the world.

The works in the University's Sculpture Park were generously donated by a number of remarkable philanthropists and are available for the general public to enjoy, both in person and in the digital realm. Indeed, in November 2019, Hans van de Bovenkamp's Circles and Waves XX (1987) was digitally scanned using cutting-edge technology by Nextech, which will use the resulting files to create a variety of applications that facilitate visitor engagement, onsite and remotely. Similarly, UM Assistant Professor Lien Tran and UM Lecturer Diana Ter-Ghazaryan recently used Interactive Media GeoMuse to create a virtual, interactive mapping experience based on our Sculpture Park (you will find the relevant QR code on the back of this map).

These works, and the exciting and innovative uses to which they are being put, are testaments to the University's commitment not only to the arts and all that they represent but also to globalism and diversity. In addition, they speak to UM's abiding interest in enhancing our local community and promoting a shared sense of local pride. This guide is designed to help you easily locate and identify these sculptures, which have been installed at strategic points throughout our lovely Coral Gables campus and are professionally maintained by the Lowe Art Museum with support from RLA Conservation.

I hope you will enjoy exploring the University of Miami's outstanding collection of outdoor sculptures, which will continue to grow in the years to come. And, while you are on campus, please stop in for a visit at the Lowe, Miami-Dade County's first art museum and, to this day, the only such institution in our region with a truly Global collection.

Jill Deupi JD, PhD
Beaux Arts Director and Chief Curator

It is for these reasons that the University of Miami is proud to host a vibrant sculpture park, which comprises more than thirty pieces by leading sculptors from around the world. These works are a testament to the University's commitment not only to the arts and all that they represent but also to globalism and diversity. In addition, they speak to UM's abiding interest in enhancing our local community and promoting a shared sense of pride.

The works held in the University of Miami's sculpture park were generously gifted to the U by a number of remarkable philanthropists and are available for the general public to enjoy. This guide is designed to help you easily locate and identify these sculptures, which have been installed at strategic points throughout our lovely Coral Gables campus and are professionally overseen by the Lowe Art Museum.

Founded in 1950, the Lowe is Miami-Dade County's first collecting art museum. Its encyclopedic collection comprises 10,000 works and spans 5,000 years of global art and culture. The University's outdoor sculpture park, which was formally established in 2001, is a fitting adjunct to the Museum's holdings and reflects Miami-Dade County's diverse community.

We hope you enjoy discovering the University of Miami's outstanding collection of outdoor sculptures, which will continue to grow in the years to come.
