L. DISCUSSION ITEMS

City Manager Iglesias: I think Chief Hudak has certain information concerning the event what happened on Thursday and we would like to update you now, if we could, something that has come to light.

Chief Hudak: Good afternoon. First of all, I want to thank everybody in the building for listening to that security guard over there who did an outstanding job on looking this building down. I know you all have emergency buttons, but the reason why we got here and came here as opposed to across the street because he hit his emergency button and told us we were needed over here, and it really probably saved some people's lives. I will appropriately thank you officially through the department, but its employees that we have under contract like that, that did an outstanding job. Its been a tough couple of days for law enforcement in general, not just here, but in Pensacola as well. Its how we respond. I can't say I'm prouder of not just the officers, but supervisors. Of the supervisors both as a collaborative effort, but when the investigation is complete, I really want you to listen to some of the communication operators and what they did and how they helped stem what could have been a much worse tragedy of a very tragic event. In speaking with my counterparts in the FBI, FDLE, I know I briefed some of you individually on what's going on. I can tell you today that the involved officers have been identified, preliminarily by Florida Department of Law Enforcement. There are no officers from the City of Coral Gables that discharged their firearms during the entire incident. We did have officers that were behind the incident as it transgressed or

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: Migrated.

Chief Hudak: Migrated - all of the above. As I said the other day, this is a dangerous job and everything that's ever happened across the country has happened here in Coral Gables throughout its history. The other day it touched on us. We saw what kind of people come in. I will tell you preliminarily, the evidence has been sent over at the CCTV issues, that they come into play. We did use some of that footage as well, which was sent over to the FBI, as we continue to use our tools, our technology to its advantages. However, more importantly our officers on both the scenes here really all clear the scene, as well as our contracted security people did an unbelievably admirable job, and a little change in fate and it could have been here. It could have begun and ended here. I think we are prepared for that. I can't talk to the tragic loss of the two innocent civilians up there. That will continue to be investigated by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement in conjunction with the FBI. The FBI at my request, but also their request is handling all of the crimes that was handled here. That was the decision that was made at the scene at the time to keep it all together to have much more of a transparent look and everything else. I know there has been a lot of commentary directed at the City, directed at the police department, but part of the facts that I continue to get out today in talking with Miami-Dade and FDLE this afternoon was that there were no Coral Gables police officers who discharged their firearms during the entire incident. We will continue to do the investigation, I'll continue to keep you briefed as we have to, but I wanted you as our elected officials and my superiors to understand exactly where we went and how we felt.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: Chief, now that you've made this comment, I have two comments. Now that you've made these comments, I have received and I'm sure all of you have received comments accusing us of murder and crimes and whatever; and I responded to two or three of them saying we had nothing to do with us, and you told me not to do it until what you are saying became public. Am I free to tell these people that we had nothing at all to do with it at this point?

Chief Hudak: As we know it right now and this is the preliminary investigation till FDLE is finished, no officers from the City of Coral Gables fired their firearms.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: I want to say that, no blame or anything like that.

Chief Hudak: And I don't think we are. I think from the Chief's perspective, there are several other investigations. There are officers involved that number in the teens. I mean everybody saw what I saw and what everybody else saw. So, in difference to our colleague cities, honestly Mayor, I wouldn't respond to any of them. I've gotten the death threats, I've gotten all of those. If we believe its something Internal Affairs now responds to all of those.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: We don't believe it's anything.

Chief Hudak: No, but if I were to play back some of the tape that have been calling the communications section and what these people are and that's the first side that we live in, they are going to say that. I tend to ask to let the facts play out. I'm glad that the woman that worked across the street was not more seriously hurt, so I'm happy she's better, but as I told the media and I will tell the officers, everything that happened that day started with a gun shot that started across the street. They fired first here, what appears to be they fired first on the Turnpike and they fired first at those officers that were approaching, and it could have been a lot worse, we've seen it. We are going to continue as public servants. We are going to take a lot of criticism from people and we are getting criticized from people that used to work for us too and I don't take kindly to that. I think somebody who propports themselves as a representative or retired representative from this City is out of line. I think departments were out of line and the maneuvers they talked about we don't even teach.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: Let me ask a second question, and it's a very sensitive question and I don't expect an answer from the two of you today, but most other cities, if not all other cities, the county has metal detectors to come into City Hall. I would like at some point and maybe not even today, but to get your reaction on getting metal detectors at City Hall.

Chief Hudak: The Manager and I had hours' worth of conversations all day Friday, first on his agenda. We have brought up some of the reports. We are looking at what we can do. We do have assessments made on this building. Again, depending on what the threat is, its going to come down to a process that we'll put together and present to you as a staff about what you all think we need to do in the building. This building because of this design has some inherent safe rooms. Its just getting those protocols in and talking with our employees. We are going to drill down a little bit more on our active shooter drills, as well as for all of you. In this case, its as good as our people. Other than making this a "Fort Knox" unless we hire and subcontract people like this gentleman back here that is going to take action within seconds, because even though it took us less than a minute to get here, if it was a different situation and we've seen it time after time knowing what the threat is and evaluating it and it goes to everything that we do. When our building moves what's our police presents in this general area. So, we are taking care of that, to answer your question Mayor. We do have a proposal and some meetings, met with the Manager to come forward, but that's not something we'll probably talk too much in public about, so it will probably be one-on-one briefings with you about what we will do to enhance that here in the building.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: Thank you Chief.

Vice Mayor Lago: Thank you Chief, good work.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: Before we conclude, I'd like to report on the Coral Gables Museum. We had thousands of people there last week. We had him on Tuesday for the opening, for the exhibit we had him on Thursday for a cocktail party, and Sunday too, announcing Rafael Barrios our artist, our Art Basel artist. It's a success. It's a wonderful, wonderful success. We had a collection of sculptures, we had....museum exhibit from Venezuela and we had Rafael Barrios. And I think we should be very, very proud of museum, because we are on the map in Miami-Dade County museums which is saying a lot. We should be very proud of it.

Vice Mayor Lago: First off, I want to - when is our next meeting? - we have until the New Year, right? I want to wish everybody Happy Holidays, Merry Christmas, Happy Chanukah, its been a great year. I appreciate all of you. Your efforts this year have been incredible on behalf of the residents and the business community, you make this Commission look great. I just want to say thank you for your efforts and your commitment to the City. One item that I have, item of business. I haven't had the pleasure of being the appointment on behalf of this Commission for the Museum. I have a lot of things on my plate, the TPO and different endeavors here in the City and I would like to hand that over to my esteemed colleague, the Mayor, who has done an incredible job, if he will take that role.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: I would be very honored, and I'm flattered that you made that suggestion.

Vice Mayor Lago: To be my appointment, to be our appointment, excuse me, on the Museum Board for the City of Coral Gables. He has an exceptional personal collection and he has a great eye for art, and I think its an opportunity for him to really continue the efforts of the museum which have been great under the auspices of the new board and John Allen. That's the only comment I have.

Mayor Valdes-Fauli: Anything else? Meeting adjourned.
